

OUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR:

COLIN PINKEY is a highly respected and award winning community leader who has spent the last 20 years bringing leadership and change to the most distressed communities in Charlotte. Since 2013, he has served as Executive Director of The Harvest Center of Charlotte. Before joining The Harvest Center, Colin established The Urban Restoration, Inc., a Christian outreach to inner city children and youth. Under Colin's leadership from 1995 to 2012, Urban Restoration reached over 15,000 young people with the life-changing message of hope and dignity.

Colin's service to the community reaches from the underserved to the most affluent individuals in our city. In 2008, he founded "We are World Class" book club for male high school students, helping over 180 students graduate from high school on time. As team Chaplain for the NBA Charlotte Hornets, he serves as spiritual mentor to some of the NBA's most talented athletes. His optimistic approach to problem solving and his intuitive ability to initiate and sustain partnerships across diverse groups has garnered distinguished recognition from former Mayor of Charlotte, Anthony Foxx, former Governor of North Carolina, Beverly Purdue, and NBA Legend and Charlotte Hornets' CEO, Michael Jordan.

Colin is a firm believer in the power of partnerships with like-minded agencies and individuals as the key to transformative and lasting change in the lives of Charlotte's most vulnerable citizens. He has a bold vision to lead The Harvest Center of Charlotte into the future as the premiere faith based organization focused on the homeless, poor and unemployed in our city.

He and his wife Terry have been married for 19 years and are raising six amazing children; four daughters and two sons.
